Everything changes. Things are never the same with-in us or with-out us. In the year 1977-1978 Culpeper County High School and each of its members have gone through transition after transition. The differences with-in each person are known to him or her alone. But the differences outside each individual, like the differences in the school, can be seen by anyone — who looks.

FEATURE Accept Change

Skipping all of Friday, being tardy for the twelfth time, Mr. Piper taking yesterday's absence excuse, buying two lunches and only eating the tacos . . .

Remember last year? All of this has changed resulting in new policies and attitudes. Changes—the attendance and tardy policies, the dual busing system, the smoking lounge regulations, the cafeteria service.

One could say that skipping class was practically impossible. CCHS had adopted a new attendance policy. It stated that any student who missed a class over nine days in a nine-weeks period received an F for that class. If a student was sick over that period, (s)he could make an appeal with a parent's and doctor's excuse. According to the tardy policy, if a student was tardy six times during the entire year, (s)he was suspended.

With the introduction of kindergarten, the dual busing system was born separating high school students from elementary school students.

A new privilege was obtained for smokers. If the smoking lounge grounds were kept clean, students could smoke between classes, but a smoking permit was still required.

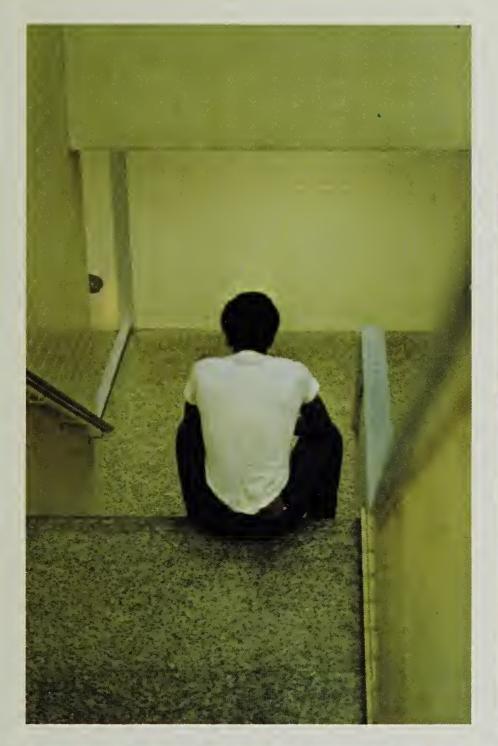

Considering the changes in the cafeteria, anti-spinach supporters received the a la carte line with open arms and open mouths. The a la carte line provided an alternative for otherwise reluctant students.

Everyone was affected by these changes—whether they liked it or not.

RIGHT: Two additions to the existing school traffic problems are the opening of the new junior high and the dual busing system. ABOVE: An unidentified shadow is cast by one of the few who dare to skip school with the new absentee policy.

What Bike Race?

Cycling. People of all ages enjoy it — including high school students. However, at the Second Annual Clean Air Bike Race held in Culpeper in September, the only high school student to participate was Mike Canavan. He won second place in his biking division.

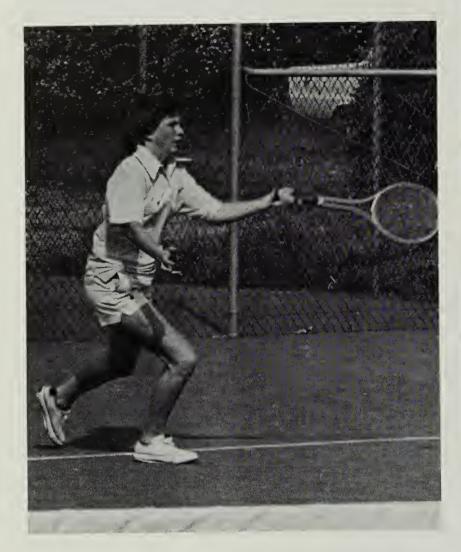

The Bike Race was publicized on a major Washington, D.C. television station. Devoted and avid cyclers came from all around to participate in the races. However, attendance of local folk at the Bike Race was poor. But that did not serve to lessen the fun and enjoyment and excitement of the competition.

Tennis Swings Into Action

The Culpeper girl's tennis team had just defeated a weak Spotsylvania team, 6-3. They were celebrating their triumph at a Jaycees carnival in Spotsylvania. While there, Sandy Via chanced her last quarter on a game and won! Her prize was a one and a half foot stuffed doll — Woodstock, the little yellow bird in the Peanuts comic strip.

The team adopted the doll as their mascot and named it Lucille. "Lucille," a popular song by Kenny Rogers, was the team's theme song.

The doll followed the team to all its matches, but as a lucky piece, it proved fickle. Sometimes they won; more often they lost. The team's seasonal record was a disappointing 5-7.

As a token of their warm esteem, the team presented the mascot to their coach Mary Weaver at the Spring Sports Banquet.

It was May 14th and Varina was hosting the District Championship.

A group from the Culpeper tennis team was sunbathing while watching their leaders Page Chichester and Doug Woodside play.

The Varina tennis team had formerly described the Culpeper team's game as "backyard tennis." This phrase referred to the fact that their teams had been coached by a professional tennis player and Culpeper's had not.

These sunburned, barefooted, barechested Culpeper spectators truly complimented their rustic image. Soon, they would defeat Varina to win the second place title in the district. So much for professional tennis coaches!

Homecoming Brings Spirit Increase

Homecoming, usually the most predictable event of the year, experienced minor growing pains. Traditionally, the spirit chain was sponsored by the SCA raising a total of $411 with the seniors on top.

The decorating of the halls temporarily added a splash of color to the high school's freeways. The class of '78 came out the winners in this competition.

The dance was untraditionally given on the night after the game. This provided more time for decking out for the affair. Couples and stags were equally welcomed, but the couples terrifically outnumbered the loners. The band Family Reunion kept the fingers snapping, the hands clapping, and feet stomping.

Forty to nothing against Varina showed the school what the Blue Devils were really capable of doing.

All considered, it seemed that spirit during homecoming was on the rise. Given a little room for growth, the students' spirits grew in leaps and bounds.

Injuries Plague Devils' Winning Season

Although the Devils were hurt by injuries this season, they came out winners.

During the first scrimmage, Kenny Minner severely broke his leg. Ronnie Lane was injured on his way to practice. Both were out for the season. Bobby Bobbitt's leg injury in the game against St. Stephens kept him out of the next three district games. Gerald Bobbitt promptly filled his position and did an outstanding job. Steve Jenkins and Jerreld Terrell were kept out of the last game when they suffered knee injuries.

The gridders' displayed impressive pride and spirit against persistent injuries.

Humor Brightens Team Spirits

The Devils traveled to Orange on Sept. 15th to conquer the Hornets in a close game.

It was a run away game at halftime — 0 to 12, Orange. After an inspiring halftime talk by Coach League, the J.V. Gridders scored a touchdown by the end of the third quarter. Patrick Barber (linebacker) intercepted a pass and ran it back 35 yards for the second Blue Devil touchdown. George Robinson leaped over the goal line for the tie-breaking point after touchdown.

Throughout the entire season the J.V.'s never lacked spirit or pride despite the fact that practices were limited to 15 minutes a day.

It was a cold, rainy September 20th in Charlottesville. The cross country team was in town for the UVA Invitational. The team members were free to roam before the meet while Coach Gordon attended a meeting. While waiting, part of the team entertained passersby with a "one-legged track began their cheers.

Upon arriving in Orange, the girls were to begin their warm-ups, but before they could start several girls had to stop by a nearby mirror.

At 4:00 the games began and as the field events were being held, the school record was broken by Debra Holmes with a discus throw of 93 feet 8 inches.

Strong wins in the field events and excellent running by the sprinters gave Culpeper a 63-47 victory over Varina.

Coach Yeatts Resigns

The Culpeper hockey team had an eventful season. The most important event was that the team's coach, Ms. Anne Yeatts, resigned from her teaching position at CCHS during the team's season and took a new job with Wyland and Associates. Ms. Boyd, the J.V. coach, then became the Varsity coach.

History repeated itself for the team. Trudy Butler suffered a leg injury at the away game with King George. As a J.V. player last year, she suffered a leg injury at the away game with King George.

Despite its loss against Albemarle in the last game of the season, the team was still in a good mood. They celebrated by feasting at Barnaby's, and by giving Ms. Boyd an opal necklace.

When the school board put the crunch on interscholastic transportation, the girl's softball team and the J.V. baseball team had to double up on the trips to several away games. On their first trip together, the two teams played Louisa — the girls winning 12-2 and the boys losing 2-5. On the trip home, the girls poked fun at the boys incessantly while the boys remained silent. For the last game of the season, the two teams doubled up again, only this time the boys won 8-2 and the girls lost 3-4. Coach Ward made the J.V. baseball team stay quiet, preventing their anticipated revenge upon the girls.

This was J.V. baseball's first winning season under Coach Ward due to experienced players and several starters from the Junior High School.

The J.V. hockey team was larger than usual this year. Since most of the team members were Junior High students there was a lack of experience.

Since only eleven girls play at a time, some members didn't get to play. The two halves of a game run about fifteen to twenty minutes, and during the last five minutes of each half no substitution is allowed. A limited amount of time is left to rotate players, and the coach is often forgetful.

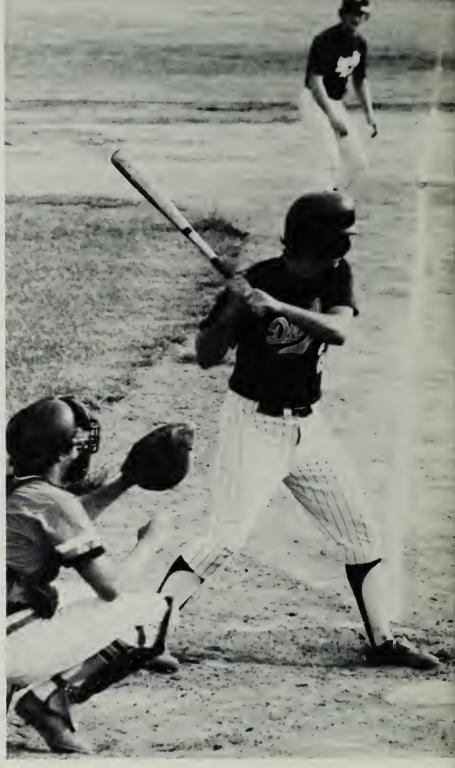

The team's aggressive play received some energetic responses. Shelly Scott celebrated one of her goals by doing a split in front of the cage.

Best Season Since '53

The varsity baseball team's season was enlivened by its team members' attitudes. For away games, the members sang "John Thorpe's dope's gonna freeze tonight; ain't gonna get no buzz"—as their bus song. While sitting on the bench, some team members held a contest to see who could drink the most orange juice. Mark Bryson held the record at 31 cups. The team concocted nicknames for each other. David Wolfford was dubbed "conehead" after Saturday Night Live's Coneheads from the planet Remulack.

The team's humorous nature did not distract from their seriousness on the diamond. Their 12-3 record was varsity baseball's best since the year 1953.

Rookie Coaches Produce Winning Teams

For the first time since 1973, the softball team won the Battlefield District Title. This win took them to the regional competition where they lost to Warren County, the defending champions. Since it was Miss Boyd's first encounter with softball, placing second in the region was quite an accomplishment, even for the experienced team.

Miss Boyd placed most of her emphasis on defense. She replaced catcher Vera Drumgoole after she suffered a leg injury early in the season, with Kathy Scott. Karen Wagner also sat out the season with an arm injury. Injuries were not a setback for the team enjoyed a successful and eventful season.

Rain is no stranger to golfers, but lightning is a great danger. A golfer with a metal club raised in the air is an ideal lightning rod.

The Culpeper golf team had just begun competition with Warren County when a thunderstorm approached. The rain was a godsend for some like John Jones who forgot his putter and was forced to putt with a three-iron. Others, like Kevin Batten who forfeited a birdie putt, were quite disappointed. John Moran experienced a shock when a lightning bolt struck in his vicinity. Yet he was still disappointed in surrendering his even par. It soon became evident that play was futile, so they loaded the bus and headed back to Culpeper.

J.V.'s Share Their Busses

Under their new coach Ray Ratcliff, the J.V. basketball team came out with a winning season of 12-6. Carroll Apperson and Gary Williams led in scoring while Derek and Tim Fincham led in rebounding.

Traditionally, the J.V. sports receive less attention than the varsity sports. The J.V. cagers, (who had to sit in the back of the bus on the away trips), decided to retaliate several times by starting paper and ice battles.

This fall's J.V. girl's basketball season was nearly identical to their previous season. In both seasons, the J.V.'s were undefeated, and they were regional champions. Their success was due to their aggressive play and tough defense.

The team also carried over many traditions from last year. The J.V.'s shared the away bus with the varsity girl's basketball team and with the G.A.A. cheerleaders. Cramped conditions resulted, but it didn't irritate the players because most of the players were used to it. They were also used to winning games and piling up regional championships.

Tenth Year in a Row

This year's Culpeper girl's basketball team entered their season as the shortest team in the Battlefield district. For the tenth consecutive year, talent and brains triumphed over physical proportions when the team captured the district championship.

Defense, Culpeper's trademark through the season, prevailed during the district game with a large number of steals and rebounds. The game was decided by the end of the third quarter when the score was 38-14. Coach Carter used all substitutes in the fourth quarter, but she brought back the starters with three minutes left when the lead dwindled (with the score 50-30). Vera Drumgoole was the highest scorer in the game with 18 points, and Nadine Smoot followed with 10 points.

After the game, Barbara Thompson cut the net from around the goal symbolizing their triumph and hopes for a regional title.

Cagers Poole Efforts

Simon Poole's first year as varsity basketball coach put to rest the old adage that new coaches can't have big seasons. The Devil cagers rallied behind their new coach for a 15-3 record and the district title. The new junior high gym and a growth in school spirit contributed to the Devil wins.

Seniors Robert Long and Barry Coleman led the team to the regional semi-finals where their season ended against Harrisonburg. The Harrisonburg team featured a seven foot Goliath, and his team played to him during the entire game. Culpeper put up a diligent effort, but they were nine points short at the game's end.

This year's J.V. cheerleading team had the same uniforms as last year's — for that matter, the same as twelve years ago. Unlike other sports' teams, cheerleading "doesn't bring in any money;" therefore no money can be spent on uniforms or supplies for the cheerleaders.

Experience was another thing that hindered the cheerleaders. With the new Jr. High school, the J.V. teams only consisted of sophomores. The freshman class normaly contributes several cheerleaders to the J.V. cheerleaders, but not this year. Only four of the ten had previous experience — Lisa Jones, co-captain; Robin Covington, co-captain; Barbara Holt; and Jeanne Cowger.

Gymnasts Under Equipped

The Gymnastics team in many ways was ill-equipped. Practices were held in the new Jr. High gym since all of the High School equipment was too old and decrepit to be used. New equipment was ordered, but it came in the day after the season was over.

As for the team itself, the growing lack of interest toward gymnastics influenced the number of people who went out for the team. The 1978 team consisted of eleven members; in the past there have been as many as 35 on the team.

No "I" in Team

There is satisfaction and security in being part of a team if a person has found for himself/herself a niche in that team. If he/she is important in the team, then the team needs and accepts him/her.

However, everyone at times wants to

However, everyone at times wants to avoid the politics of the "team." They want to be independent in purpose and alone in achievement. This is where personal sports become an important part of an individual's life.

Classroom Life

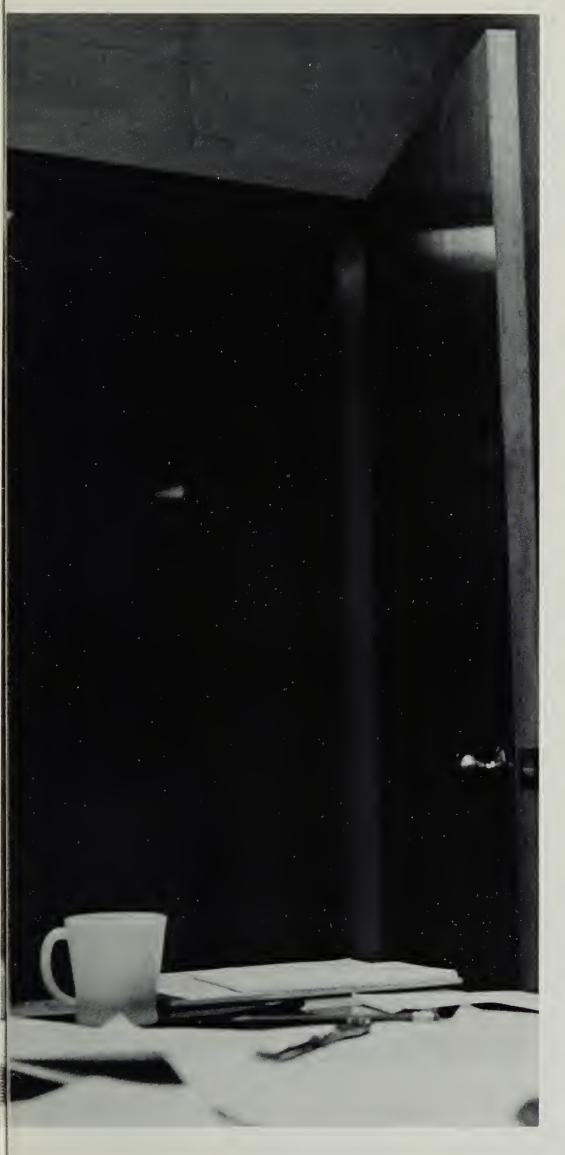

During the first assembly of the year, students dance to "Brick House" played by a visiting Air Force band. In 1977-1978 students are freer to express themselves.

Showing the concern of Mr. Pearson, his office door stands open to all students.

Open Door Policy Comes to CCHS

An open door reflects an open mind. An open door is an invitation to people. It is a friendly welcome. An open door is part of a principal's effort to be in touch with the students.

CCHS had a new type of principal in 1977. Mr. Bill Pearson tried to understand the students; he tried to be accessible to them. The open door of his office symbolized the concern and the interest he took in the students.

Besides a new principal, a number of new teachers were added to the faculty. These included: Jim Sheldrake, Maria Frank, Steve Bolton, Julie Seiter, Suzanne Savage, Frank Klagges, Jeff Diamond, Kathy Davis, Rita Spradlin, Bonnie Templeton, Marcia Ward, A.D. Wise, and Ed Bulheller.

Newness and change characterized 1977-1978. Homeroom was eliminated with students reporting directly to first period. Semester exams were reinstated after five years absence. In addition, CCHS was without a freshman class. With the new junior high school, ninth grade pupils did not clutter the halls of the high school.

The year 1977-1978 saw a policy of openness—the openness and the willingness to change.

So Far, We're All Very Pleased

Q. What is your philosophy on student/teacher relationships?

A. Teachers have the responsibility to bear in mind that they are professional educators. It is their responsibility to set a good example and to fulfill the obligations as a teacher, whether these are things they enjoy doing or not . . . The student/teacher relationship can be very cordial — it doesn't have to be an unfriendly relationship. It can and should be a very close one, though I'm not sure it is that way. A teacher can do this and still maintain a professional role.

Q. How do you feel the new policies have worked out so far?

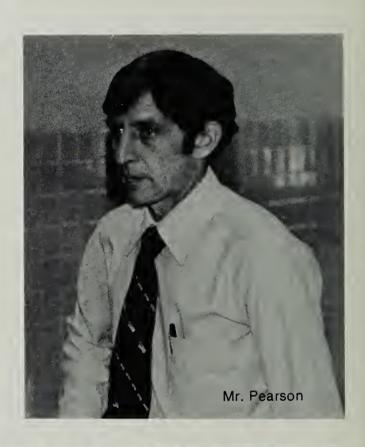

A. We are very pleased with how the policies have worked thus far. The number of students who are chronic absentee problems has reduced by almost half. As far as the attendance policy is concerned, we feel we're doing what we set out to do; we wanted to cut down absentees for students who were chronic problems in this area. We didn't want to punish the student who generally attends school when he is supposed to attend school. The grading policy concerning failure for ten or more absences is also working out. So far, for the first nine weeks we had five appeals and four were legitimate. Really I think the attendance and grading have really improved. Perhaps as we review our past actions, we'll tighten up in some areas, or loosen up in others.

Q. Any improvements for later on?

A. Well, we're reviewing how things have gone so far since it is mid-year. The absentee policy is definitely going to change. We're going to cut the number of possible days down one. Next year we're also planning to ask teachers and students to make suggestions for the student handbook through SCA. But so far, we're all very pleased.

PSYCHOLOGY

Q. What goals do you have for your students?

A. For students to gain an understanding of basic human behavior. Also, that they may gain some insight into their own personalities and their own self-concepts.

Q. Does psychology serve it's purpose in a high school?

A. The course is valid if the students are given every possible opportunity to develop themselves and understand others' behavior.

Q. What activities do you want to propose for your future classes?

A. I want to see more experimentation, more experiments with human behavior. For example, working with rats in a type situation when you modify behavior. They'd get a lot more out of that.

Creativity Has Been Stifled By T.V.

- Q. Do you think we need to get back to basics in our English classes?
- A. We definitely need to put more emphasis on what is called the basics these days. We have had students in the past years who were not qualified to be graduates.
- Q. Do you think simulations and other classroom activities help stimulate student interest?
- A. It puts the student on the spot to have to produce. It causes him to have to work on a more individual basis. So, results are more evident in these situations
- Q. Has there been a decline in English proficiency over the past several years?
- A. Top students never go down in proficiency. From average down, there has been a definite decline.
- Q. In the classroom, which is more important-creativity or good mechanics in writing?
- A. I grade according to content and will ovelook a few errors. But I think creativity has been stifled by television.

Students are . . . More Inclined to Give Up

Q. What is the single most important function of a Math Department?

A. To provide a broad spectrum of electives and required subjects so that a student is prepared for college and to go out into the world.

Q. What are the main objectives you try to hit during the year?

A. I want to cover all topics in a course outline . . . and keep students abreast of specially oriented interviews such as college boards.

Q. Why do you enjoy teaching Math?
A. It is such a precise subject, you can retrace your errors to find mistakes.

Q. Have students' attitudes changed greatly in the past few years?

A. Today's students are much more inclined to give up than try something a little hard. If it becomes too hard for them, they just quit rather than putting forth more effort.

People Have To Be Self-Motivated

Q. What are the main attitudes you try to instill within your students?

A. I attempt to give them an awareness of what science does for us in our everyday lives. Also, I want to show them the significance of mankind in general.

Q. What responsibilities do you feel toward your students?

A. Safety in lab and a basic understanding of concepts that the subject deals with.

Q. And your goals?

A. Just to give a basic understanding of the science. I want to show them the value of Chemistry.

Q. Do you try to motivate disinterested students?

A. I think high school people have to be self-motivated. An intelligent person who has ability in a lot of fields does a disservice to himself if he is not interested in a certain area he has not investigated. People should not close doors before they have had a chance to investigate what's behind those doors.

Department Growth Does More for Students

Q. How valuable is business training to our students?

A. It is one of the few courses in high school you can take and immediately go out and get a job with. The business skills that are offered in this high school are so valuable that further education is not necessary under most circumstances. . . . We do give students the opportunity to have. . .training through our cooperative office education program.

Q. How are the business teachers coping with the growth of their department?

A. The business department loves it! The more our department grows, the more we are able to do for the students. . .it is beneficial to the students are well as the community.

Everyone Should Make Up Their Own Mind

Q. Do you feel any responsibility to your students to instill a sense of duty as a citizen?

A. Yes, I try to go over with them the Constitution, the basic rights they have as citizens. I encourage them to vote and become involved. We have various outside speakers who come down and we also have a local government day when we try to get everyone involved in the offices uptown.

Q. What basic skills do you teach in Government?

A. I try to prepare people for college, note taking; develop their reading, etc. Responsibility in assignments is stressed.

Q. Do you ever allow your own personal political feelings to enter into your teaching?

A. I am asked what my feelings are on a subject and I tell them where I got my information and they can go and check it out for themselves. If I give an opinion, I want them to know how I made up my mind and how they should go about making up theirs. If there are two sides to an issue, I try to mention those, because everyone should make up their own mind.

Art is Learning To Appreciate Different Things

Q. How do students benefit from an appreciation for the arts?

A. It opens up people to new ideas. Also, other courses are studying facts and figures. Art's only place is learning to see and appreciate things that are different. It is good to be exposed to new and different things.

(Drama) . . . relieves a student's tawdry, hum-drum workday . . . at this stage of a student's life, it is impossible to detect any real benefits.

Q. How do you try to develop good relationships with your students?

A. I try to be fair with the students. When a problem comes between a student and myself, I deal with it personally by talking it over with the student. You should let them know that you like them as the people that they are, because school deals with routines and rules. You don't have times when you relax with students.

Q. Have there been any changes in today's students as compared to past years?

A. No, because students at certain stages in their lives are pretty similar to the other years.

The Great Disaster Strikes

It was November 7, a rainy Monday afternoon around 4 o'clock, and twelve Drama II students were anxiously pacing back and forth. After several minutes, a door opened and the high school drama teacher Mr. Jeff Larsen entered. Mr. Larsen opened his make-up box, and preparations for the Great Disaster began.

Each of the students was either a "victim" of a "bus wreck" or an hysterical relative. Tim Deane and myself (Andy Gayheart) acted as reporters. Some of the injuries were: Kim Baumgardner's crushed skull, Mike Canavan's pierced chest, and Debra Early's disrupted pregnancy. The make-up process was finished shortly before 6 o'clock, and the Culpeper Rescue Squad was called.

When the rescue men arrived to treat the bus wreck victims, they soon realized it was a fake wreck, and began to joke around with the students. Finally they notified the hospital of the bus accident.

As the victims were carried into the hospital on stretchers, moans and screams echoed through the halls. Many of the doctors and all of the aides were not aware that the accident was a drill. Registered patients of the hospital tried to console the poor, suffering children. After some confusion, all the victims were "treated" and released.

By 7 o'clock the victims were sipping free drinks in the hospital cafeteria. The cast was congratulated on a fine performance.

Your Way is not the Only Way

Q. What is the importance of taking a foreign language?

A. You may have the opportunity to communicate with foreigners in our country. But even more than that, I think what it does is broaden your outlook; it lets you see that your way isn't the only way. I think it helps people broaden the way they feel about other races and cultures. It is also a means of re-emphasizing grammar skills.

Q. Do you think it's your responsibility to give cultural background in order to give a better grasp of the language?

A. Yes, I try to put across that people use it and it is a way of communication. If you just study about the language itself, it does not do you any good. You need to know something about the people.

Q. What is the main objective you try to concentrate on in a class?

A. To try to make a student functional on merely a conversational level.

Q. Will the average student benefit in later life from his knowledge of a language?

A. You may never know . . . people going into religious, social work . . . may have the chance to use the language.

You Should Leave Knowing Something

Q. What goals do you set for your course?

A. I want to get (people) familiar with instruments. And even if you go to college and aren't planning on doing anything with drawing, ect. it will still be helpful to you on special projects you want to do. It's always nice to have.

Q. What does industrial arts include? A. Woodworking, plastics, ceramics, leather-making, etc. It's just a large field of things, taken up into different areas. Here we just have mechanical drawing and woodworking.

Q. What type of people do you get in mechanical drawing?

A. People who take mechanical drawing are people who are really interested in it. These are usually your better students as far as grades go. (Many times), not necessarily in this school, if a kid has problems in some classes, the first thing they want to do is send him to shop. So, you get . . . not real academic students in woodworking. I treat it just like any English class. You come there to learn something, and when you leave you ought to know something.

Job Availability After Graduation

PIEDMONT

Students from CCHS daily leave these halls in order to learn a selected skill at the Piedmont Vocational School. These people prepare themselves for jobs in various fields such as: Commercial Sewing, Electronics, Practical Nursing, Welding and Auto Mechanics. The benefits of this program include job availability after graduation. After having been instructed at Piedmont, most people are qualified in the field of their choice.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

Q. How does P.E. benefit students?

A. It helps students to identify themselves in physical activities. It recognizes the degree of ability where one can participate usually in other activities.

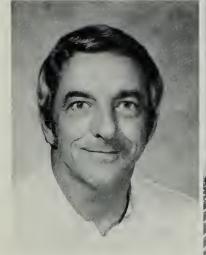

Q. Is the new 11th grade class a success this year?

A. Yes... some take it for credit; they find it harder than those who took it because they like P.E. Next year, students will be screened before they are able to take the 11th grade class.

Q. What do you do with uncoordinated students?

A. They should never be separated from good athletes. Patience, developing self confidence and coordination comes from being with good atheltes.

Q. What differences do you see in the band at CCHS as compared to Fort Defiance?

A. The students here are more musically aware. . .they have a better understanding of music. They have had more opportunities to excel and to experience various areas of music.

Q. What are some of your ideas for the band's future?

A. I would like to get more ensemble work with the band members. . .various types of ensembles, quartets. I hope to see a larger percentage of the high school students involved in the band program, not just in playing but in the marching band front area.

Q. How does music help one develop his personality?

A. The discipline that is involved. . .the idea of understanding and attaining a common goal just has so much to do with the development of the individual. Plus, in any type of group, a student has to be aware of how his peers feel about certain situations. It's like being empathetic with one another and understanding and reading each others' minds. . .

Q. What are some pros and cons of the music program?

A. We're having some instrumentation problems. I think that maybe we can build the self pride in the individual . . .students staying in the band program until they graduate.

Expected to Produce

Q. What goals do you set for your student?

A. Home Economics/Improvements in regard to self, family, and community. Family Living/Takes in areas of personal development and emotional development in society.

Q. What do you put an emphasis on in your classes?

A. Home Economics/The emphasis is on foods and clothing. Consumer knowledge and lab work is important also. In advanced courses, the importance of foods and nutrition. They do research and report on foreign foods.

Q. Do you have any different projects planned?

A. Home Economics/The exams were labs. The students had to prepare foods for the test.

Q. How can the knowledge gained in these courses be applied in later life? A. Home Economics/Anything is practical. Students can see the value immediately. They don't have to wait ten years to put their knowledge into practice. Economically, sewing abilities are important. Family Living/Pregnancy and childbirth knowledge is valuable later.

Q. Any additional comments?

A. Some students enroll thinking these are snap courses that require no work. I expect them to produce. It's not an academic class, but I'm not baby-sitting either.

45 Minutes of Change

A majority of people enjoyed being in a club of their interest. Chances for learning and socializing were provided for many — even if cramped quarters inconvenienced clubs (HI-Y was forced to move out in the hall). But what happened to students who didn't join a club because of conflicting schedules, overcrowded membership, or just plain disinterest?

Third period study hall was where the clubless whiled away the forty-five minute activity period. If lucky, students got the privilege of talking to friends. But strict teachers enforced the study hall period. It was these classes where a dropped pin could be heard, even if the SPANISH club was breaking a pinata or F.F.A. was dragging initiates by a rope down the hall.

For some, activity period was too long; for others, it was too short; and a few could not have cared less. Activity day had a change from the scholastic atmosphere that hung over students' heads.

Group-picture day brought moans and groans from students and teachers alike. All day long people would have to get out of class and stand in freezing temperatures. Putting up with directions from Eric Hook and Bill Elwood, the Organizations staff of Colonnade, was enough to frustrate and provoke criticisms from students, which in turn gave the staff and photographer headaches. The ever popular "tasting experience" was once again enjoyed by FRENCH and SPANISH club members. The aroma of spicy tacos was smelled by those unlucky students who were not in these clubs. But for the Frenchmen and Spaniards a feast was in store. For the SPANISH club tacos, doritos, jalapeno dip, bunuelos, and polverones were gobbled up by ready mouths. The FRENCH club combined the forces of empty stomachs and big hands to attack quiche and pain Francais. Both clubs drank the popular drink of Europe — Pepsi.

Boosh!

Behind the scenes of "The Giant's Dance," the DRAMA club's fall play, many of the actors barely managed to memorize their lines until the last dress rehearsal. However, as if Merlin had waved his magic wand, the cast pulled it together for one of the best CCHS plays — according to the audience.

Concerning the war efforts of 470 A.D. Brittona, the romantic comedy-drama was presented November 17-20 in the thrust — with the audience on the stage on three sides. The thrust style made the audience feel like it was part of: a fight scene, a love scene, and a few explosions by Merlin. These explosions were called "booshes" by Jurg Frei (Merlin). This became a popular joke of the cast members.

Other cast members were Rick Brandt as King Ambrose, Tim Roberts as General Nud, Leslie Cowger as Queen Boudicca, Dinnie Reams as Prince Yvain, Joe Stewart as Geoffrey, Vanessa Young as Princess Alissande, Eric Hook as Rufus Septimus, Hans Schichl as the Arch-Druid Grigas, and Andy Gayheart, Bob Sell, Kevin Murphy, and David Barr as soldiers. Karen Stuckner was stage manager, and Jeff Larsen was the director.

The 1976 spring play was for the first time ever a musical. "Guys and Dolls" included both dramatists and the band members. All cast members shall remember the night Alan Gilmore called for a line. What nearly killed everybody with laughter then, and even to this day, was the expression on Alan's face when he discovered, of all things, the script in his hands.

Deadlines Plague Journalists

There were two publications at CCHS — the Pepergram (the newspaper) and the Colonnade (the yearbook). Few people realize the time and effort that it took to put out a school publication. Members of both literary works sacrificed time and, in some cases, sanity to meet deadlines.

The Pepergram staff put out their newspaper once every month. A new feature, "Senior of the Month," was added. A worthy senior would be highlighted for outstanding academic or athletic achievements each issue. The traditional last will and testaments along with senior baby pictures appeared in the last issue.

Pouring out blood, sweat, and tears, the Colonnade staff worked to meet deadlines that seemed to pop out of nowhere. With the exception of a few hurt feelings, the book made it to the publishers.

Both publications used the same room and the same blackboard. To ease tensions, members of one staff would make amusing comments about the other staff. This constant "battle" kept the staffs in good spirits through the year.

It Was A New Kind Of Christmas

In order to bring more Christmas cheer to the seasons, the STUDENT COOPERATIVE ASSOCIATION sponsored a hall decoration contest. Organizations and classes could decorate a hall or a central point, such as the cafeteria or library. The turnout was good according to S.C.A. President, Bob Sell; most people agreed the time spent on the project was well worth the atmosphere achieved by the red, green, and silver halls.

The senior and sophomore halls were decorated by their classes, much to the dismay of the juniors. Clubs that participated were ART, LATIN, FRENCH, SPANISH, and the FUTURE BUSINESS LEADERS OF AMERICA. The band also helped in the decorating. LATIN won first place for $35, SPANISH took second for $25, and FRENCH and F.B.L.A. split $15 for third.

Also for holiday flare the S.C.A. asked everyone to dress up December 21, the last day of school. A lot of students liked the idea, so coats, some ties, and nice dresses joined the decked halls to make Christmas a little more special.

Welcome To The Club

Some clubs at CCHS have a warm way of greeting new members. This warmth is called initiation. It gives the old members of the clubs a chance to get to know the new members.

The VARSITY Club revised their initiation procedure this year. The traditional "wiping out" of new members was joined by a three week period of the new members doing good deeds for the old members. These deeds included getting lunches, tying shoes, and carrying books. The three weeks were capped off by the new members singing songs for the entertainment of a girls' basketball game.

The GAA gave their new members a double dose of initiation this year. The first part of the initiation came at school. The new members dressed accordingly with clown suits, globs of make-up, and curlers as the rule of the day. During the day they had to obey the commands of the old members. The second part of the initiation took place during the basketball game that night. Still dressed in their "formal" attire, the new members entertained the crowd at half-time with their version of a chorus line.

For new FFA members, there was the Green Hand initiation. It consisted of blindfolding the new members and letting them smell "excretions" in one can and placing their hands in another can that contained Slime. During all this one of the new members gave some of the old members trouble. This was remedied by letting him put his hand in the excretion can. After this, the new members and the old members had a party and reminisced about their humorous experience.

Getting Ready For Life

Many clubs prepare their members for life in the outside world. These clubs are designed to serve the career interests of their members. With the experience gained from active participation in their clubs members are truly ready for life.

One of the important of these clubs is the FBLA. The purpose of the FBLA is to prepare its members for the business world. Through such activities as money making projects, leadership conferences, and just working together, club members gained valuable business and leadership skills.

Another club that prepares its members for life is DECA. Through the help of their club, DECA members learned first hand about the working world. Some of the members secured various jobs around town to gain experience and responsibility for jobs that they might hold later on in life. With this experience DECA members are ready to find their place in the world.

Getting Ready For Life

The 4-H club was important in preparing for the future. Its members learned many various things such as nature conservation, automobile care, and animal care. The 4-H club serves as kind of a multipurpose club.

The FFA prepares its members for careers in agriculture. With membership in the FFA one learned many farming techniques and also learned about different farm machinery. After being in the club, its members were well prepared for a career in farming.

Another club that prepares is the FHA. It prepared its members for the complicated task of running a household efficiently. With active participation in the FHA, its members were ready to handle the responsibilities of the households of tomorrow.

Some People Do A Little Bit More

Some students do what they do a little bit better than the average student. To honor these people, organizations have been formed.

The VARSITY club and the GIRLS ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION were for athletes who lettered in a school sport.

For students who not only excelled academically, but also extracurricularly, the NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY was created. The CCHS chapter required a grade point average of 3.4 for seniors and 3.2 for juniors. N.H.S. members offered coaching sessions for students who had difficulties with their studies.

Honored dramatists entered the NA-TIONAL THESPIAN SOCIETY. To be a THESPIAN, a student had to achieve a point total of 10. These points came from play related activites.

Doing What They Do Best

For those people with a hobby or a special talent, clubs existed to provide a chance to improve their abilities. Students could learn from others' experiences and share some of their own.

The ART club gave students more opportunities to work with the school's art material. Projects and a trip to a Richmond art museum were planned for the artists.

Improving carpentry abilities was the reason why students joined the INDUSTRIAL ART club. The industrialists learned new techniques with wood and the shop's machinery. One of their projects was a special seat designed to help a 3 year old boy sit up.

Doing What They Do Best

The CHESS club provided chances for members to improve their game. During activity period students could hold matches with different people. Tournaments with assorted schools, such as Fauquier were also held.

The language clubs sponsored basketball and volleyball games for their members. It was these activities, related to student talents and interests, that gave variety in the student's life.

Service With A Smile

Where would this school be without service clubs? Things would be in bad shape, indeed. These clubs do the many little things that help make life more pleasant and enjoyable for students at school. Some go even further and help the community on a whole.

The purpose of the SCA is to effectively represent the students and try to meet their needs. With the SCA's help, the students received an a-la-carte lunch line this year. The SCA also maintained the smoking lounge. For the community the SCA sponsored the Christmas boxes again. As always, the SCA was an open forum for student complaints voiced through English class representatives.

The LIBRARY club provided much needed services in the upkeep of the library. Under the supervision of Mrs. LeSueur, the club members performed the necessary tasks that were needed to keep the library running smoothly for the students who used it. Some of the tasks included restacking books on the shelves, checking books in and out of the library, and standing guard at the doors to make sure all books leaving had been checked out properly. For their diligence, club members were rewarded with interesting slide presentations during their meetings.

One cannot mention service without including the FBLA. They operated the used book sale again this year for the students. As a further service they distributed individual pictures to the students. For the community, the FBLA co-sponsored a Rock-a-thon for the March of Dimes.

Service With A Smile

Both the HI-Y and TRI-HI-Y strive to serve their school and community effectively. This year the two Y-clubs worked jointly on many ventures. The two clubs were a great help to the United Way both in collecting for the annual fund drive and in selling tickets to the Rock-a-thon.

This year's district conference was held at Culpeper. At the conference several local members were nominated for offices at the MGA. Kathy Winkler won the nomination for Senate floor leader; Bill Martin was elected to be Friday Night Chaplain; Becky Hutcheson was elected assistant clerk of the House of Delegates.

For the reading enjoyment of the students, the PEPERGRAM turned out a monthly newspaper with recent news and happenings around the school, while the COLONNADE produced a vivid picture of the school year in the yearbook.

Just Can't Seem To Get Enough

In days of inflation, unstable economy, and Carter's tax plans, the money crunch was even felt in high school. Money making projects from candy sales to potted plants swamped students and teachers the year round.

The FUTURE BUSINESS LEADERS OF AMERICA brought in a whopping 10,000 dollars from its Sandy Kits and candle sales. Top salespeople were Andrea Kocolis — 648 dollars, Cindy Clatterbuck — 480 dollars, Janice Jenkins and Robin Paine — 402 dollars, and Ronald Atkins — 400 dollars.

For the Homecoming Dance, the STUDENT COOPERATIVE ASSOCIATION sold links to the spirit chain for 5 cents a piece. The senior class contributed over half of the 400 dollars that was made. The S.C.A. also sold Blue Devil jackets; the money went for school improvements. Also spirit related, Blue Devil bumperstickers were sold by the HI-Y; the VARSITY club peddled Devil mugs at 3.50 a piece.

Just Can't Seem To Get Enough

At least the dentists were happy because of all the candy sold. The NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY sold its ever popular Katy-dids in February. The 1977 sales were responsible for two worthy seniors, David Hoyt and Tony Brown, receiving 500 dollar scholarships.

The FUTURE HOMEMAKERS OF AMERICA reintroduced M&M's in February. Profits from the 50 cent boxes went to the F.H.A. banquet, May 12. Tootsie Rolls and assorted candy bars were the fund raising projects of TRI-HI-Y. The members traveled to the Model General Assembly in Richmond March 30 — April 1.

An originial idea of potted plants was used by the ART club. Members decorated pots and planted pre-rooted plants. The proceeds went for a trip to an art museum in Richmond.

And as always, THE FUTURE FARM-ERS OF AMERICA sold oranges and grapefruits for $6.50 a box. Proceeds were used for a banquet and prospective farm equipment.

Juniors: Just One More Year

A junior is a young man or woman who can see the end of school in sight and who is trying to work toward that end. Juniors are people who have just one more year of their lives planned out for them. A junior is an individual who is beginning to realize that (s)he is not going to be forever a junior.

Sophomores: No End to School

Sophomores are young men and women who are perhaps apathetic because they see no end to school. A sophomore is a person whose future may appear to be one of endless and pointless studies. Sophomores are people who hopefully will acquire a better outlook on life when they have overcome the stagnation of being a sophomore.

A continuous carnival —
Whirling and twirling —
Lights flashing by —
A dizzy exultation —
Up and down in continuous circles —
Around and around —
Laughing, giggling, smiling —
No tickets needed.
You and I on the top of the ferris wheel,
For as long as we like.
You and I sharing candied apples —
You and I in a wonderland of love.
Bonnie Foard

With You — the Mood

As the hot summer sun slides down behind the willow tree, and slowly makes its way past the glossy glistened window sill by me —

I think of her, in the daylight, and of the special things she brings to me.

Walking through the sunlight, brings a mood that brings a change to me.

Evening starlights glitter like the way she shines on me. We sit up in the evenings catching stars, like flames, across our eyes — we see.

Mornings come like evenings — the only difference is the darkness and the light.

You and I together walking hand in hand as love into the night.

Rainy weather seasons give a life to all that's living to the end — we live.

Within my giving hand, I held to you a simple rose upon your trust I give.

Within your giving hands you held to me a gift of life — a gentle life to live.

And so, my life shall pass with you, with us together through our evening light. Yes, you and I together walking hand in hand as love into the night.

Scott Scheideler

np Fant

I returned to the scene of the night before on a March afternoon — an afternoon created for sleeping in ignorance, for making blind love, for forgetting. The afternoon was dead because people had killed it with their humanness.

I walked with aching limbs
and hollow feelings.
I looked for our footprints in the dirt of the road.
But they had run away.
I searched for our love,
And found it was gone.

But our voices remained in the whispers of the wind among the trees, And I could hear and feel our bodies move when I listened to the wind restless lake.

Sorrow was a tangible creature.
Depression was a monster dressed in remorse.
Tears welled up in my eyes,
But the tears quickly dried.
Memories refused to run down my cheeks.

I walked for a long time, not aware of anything but pain and confusion.
And then I sat on a rock And gazed at the lake — shimmering in the setting sun.

The light is half-dark
A bulb its second year has reached
No one came to fix it

Distant is the kitchen Closer is the door Frying are the fish She smells them even there

She opens the door She glances Arms reach (not hers)

She closes the door Arms reach Arms wait

"No dinner tonight dear" Gottaworklate

Alright see you then

Half-dark is the light Forward she stares

Opens the door Reach the arms

She follows

I'm the ONE, Still

past the extremities, lying somewhere out there mind shrouded in pain, from trying to name a someone who cares, but not for my own life trying to outrun the fate I'm bestowed from where I sit crying the gutter looks up for as I'm feeling so low. though it's true I am one, I'm still one as said I am one within the many perhaps the one within too many as there are many within the one. I am not here though I seek recognition. me, among others but mostly I, me, on the sky is my true, utmost ambition. still a man cannot hide beneath a shield unscarred or his words will fall like dust. and as he carries his shield if no blood hath been spilled then his own life's blood is as worthless as rust. although I think naught of a gambler and my life placed on a wheel of roulette would hardly score at all, I remain bewildered at the subtleness of my praise I was not quite prepared for the fall. for as I lay dreamily staring into space, my nonchalant manner condemns my good grace, my attitude bohemian, though ruthless I seem forgive me, I'm sorry it is not what I mean then wiping the tears I laugh loudly with the wind as I plunge back into darkness to do you evil again. trust, like a dagger has somewhat opened my eyes. and I do mean a stabbing as she has left me quite blind. she came in july and like the night she was hot told that youth was a masque

I was led to believe not. being the ruffian I am I became the demanding. she left me for better, for a king she thought, not understanding through all this and more I learned of real hate but I still remained the one I still knew my fate I'm still one within the many perhaps the one within too many, as always, the many remain with the one. now of all my travels of mind and of road. I still pray to God daily to lighten my load. and he did as he sent me my sweetest dream vet an angel of dark fields christened in lovers' sweat. as we lie down in darkness in a lover's embrace I feel nothing wrong nor do I feel out of place as she has filled me with song. when darkness envelopes me in the pit of cold nights I no longer crave death nor surrender to my plight. as a knight goes forth in battle slashing out at the rose I duel in my inkwell a master of prose. a poet so ravaged sometimes hidden by scorn a heart of stone, nevertheless so badly torn. though the days not risen I pray to the sun never forgetting that I am the one, one within the many, perhaps the one within too many. though the time is not afar shall they slip from my mind the many within the one who have been so very unkind I'm still the one. maybe the very last one. Look backward, look forward, look around, look outside. The world is in motion around each of us; we are all part of its flow. Look inside inside ourselves. With-in ourselves there is a unique flow of ideas and attitudes. Human experience is merely a series of phases, a collection of transformations. As long as you live, there are changes with-in you, changes with-out you.

Changes with-in you, with-out you FINIS
